MISLED BUT NEVER TAKEN

While walking blindly
Through the lush green forest
I stumbled upon a path
That led me astray down into a narrow crevasse
Its intent to assault me with wrath
I looked before me but only saw
A wall of blackened rain
Enticing me deeper into its icy river
Drowning me with pain
While battling the relentless, tortuous waves
A ray of light shone near
And all at once my heart grew warm
Then through the darkness there appeared
An illumination breaking through the clouds
With loving eyes so dear
The voice of God called me by my name
And said, "Release your fear
For only love can set you free
Embrace God and hold me near!"
As I obliged God's plea
A peacefulness from within
Smothered the darkness from about my spirit
As the light from God entered in
No more could the darkness touch my soul
Or control me with its sin
For I was given the ultimate gift
Knowing God's love within
Will always be with me past my dying day
Conquering the Nemesis
Time and time again
